Utah will become the dumping ground for their surplus products." It was stated at last night's meeting that many people are walking the streets of this city looking for work, which the factories cannot give them, as they are now employing as many operatives as their business makes necessary. It is said the coming exhibition will do much toward creating a sentiment in favor of spending more money for home products and will result in supplying work for

Eternal vigilance is the one essential of a successful fire fighter. And if a fire-fighter should happen to exercise his vigilance at an inopportune moment and with resultant disaster to himself, that of itself is added proof that he must be an alert firefighter indeed.

For many years Fred C. Smith has been the chief of the fire department at Logan, and Logan has to say of him that his department has sayed the city in many a crisis. Mr. Smith is a firefighter of the old school. He believes in doing taings himself and doing them quickly. Furthermore, he believes that a firefighter's place in case of a fire is at the spot where the fire is.

Recently Mr. Smith deemed it right and proper that he take a little vacation. So he laid aside his trumpet and his helmed and came to Salt Lake for a visit with his daughter. Mrs. Albert J. Bollschweiler, 42% J street.

Mr. Bollschweiler is employed by the street car company and has an early run. Therefore it is incumbent upon him to rise about the time the rooster lets go his first notes. In order that Mr. Boll-

BAKERS PUZZLED BY | COLONEL ROOSEVELT'S BREAD ORDINANCE PICTURE IS IN ISSUE

The bakers of the city are busily engaged in trying to figure out the ramlifications of the new "bread ordinance" enacted Tuesday by the city commission. A number of the manufacturers of "the stuff of life" waited on W. E. Farr, sealer of weights and measures, and several of the firms sent their attorneys to con-sult with the official on just what will sult with the official on just what will be required.

The loaves of bread at present put out from local ovens average fourteen ounces in weight. The new ordinance makes the sixteen-ounce loaf the "standard" size and provides for half and three-quarter-pound loaves. While no restriction is made against the manufacture and sale of loaves of the present size, still there is no authorization for a fourteen-ounce loaf.

"I cannot afford to sell a sixteen loat for 5 cents," said a local baker to the scaler: "and my customers are sat-isfied with the fourteen-cunce size. If the scaler. "and my customers are satisfied with the fourteen-counce size. If I am not permitted to market this size

what shall I do? The public will object to paying 5 cents for the smaller size."
A solution for the problem was sugsested by one of the bakers. "Why not continue the manufacture of the fourteen-counce size and label it twelve
